- ✔ Stain
- ✔ Sponge brushes
- ✔ Sand paper or sanding machine
- ✔ Hose and washcloths

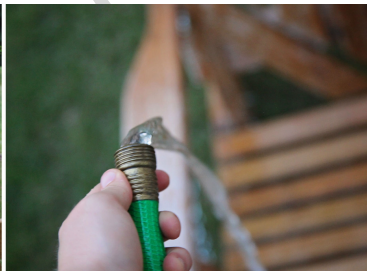

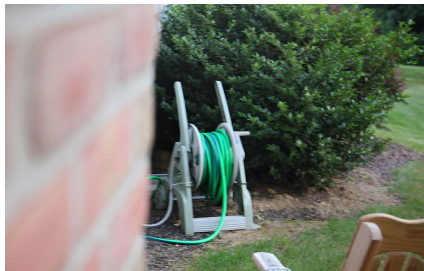

Why Stain?

It'll help protect your furniture from harsh weather. We recommend staining every other year, if not yearly, and as soon as you bring it home. Spring and Summertime work best for staining because the furniture will dry faster.

STEP 1: wash

Start by washing your furniture down with some lukewarm water, scrubbing away any stubborn marks with a rag. The cleaner your furniture, the better it will absorb the sealer.

Tip: If your furniture needs a good clean, a pressure washer might do just the trick! Make sure to use extreme caution less you damage your furniture.

STEP 2: dry

Let your furniture dry for several hours, overnight if you can. You can test the dryness of your Pressure Treated Pine piece by splashing a few droplets of water on it. If the water absorbs into the wood, it's dry enough and ready to go! If it remains beaded on the surface, let it dry longer.

STEP 3: sand

Once it's dry, sand away any rough layers of wood with a piece of sand paper or a sanding machine. This step helps smooth the furniture's surface to prepare for the stain. If your piece is already smooth, you don't need to sand.

STEP 4: stain

Begin staining! If you're using a fast-drying sealer, make sure you work fast enough that your furniture doesn't look patchy.

TIP:

Don't paint in the sun or your furniture's new stain might blister because of the heat. We recommend painting in the shade.

Now, all you need to do is let your furniture dry. Your furniture will be ready to enjoy soon enough.
